• Student Success Task Force Recommendation 6.1 (2011):

  – “Community colleges will create a continuum of strategic professional development opportunities for all faculty, staff, and administrators to be better prepared to respond to evolving student needs and measures of student success.”

• “The Chancellor’s Office should explore the use of myriad approaches to providing professional development, including . . . the use of technology.”
• Chancellor’s Office Student Success Initiative Professional Development Committee (2013).
  – Thirty-member committee.
  – Charge: Develop ideas and strategies to “revitalize and re-envision” professional development in the CCC system.

• Recommendation: “Establish a virtual professional development resource center.”

Speakers Directory

The Speakers Directory is drawn primarily from keynote presenters at recent CCC conferences and other events. The Professional Learning Network and Chancellor’s Office are providing the Speakers Directory as an information source only and do not necessarily endorse or recommend the individuals listed below.

Mount V. Allen III
During the 2012 International Association of Venue Managers Performing Arts Managers Conference in New York City, Mount Allen introduced the concept of non-higher-education performing arts venue participation in research and education networks.

Cheryl Amundsen
Cheryl’s primary program area is Educational Technology and Learning Design.

Maria Andersen
Maria H. Andersen is the Director of Learning Design at Western Governors University.

Bruce Armbrust
Bruce Armbrust is a professor of Mathematics and Physics at Lake Tahoe Community College.

Carol Aslanian
Carol B. Aslanian is Senior Vice President of Aslanian Market Research at Education Dynamics.

Joe Baca
Joe Baca won election to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1999, in a special election to replace one of California’s longest-serving Members.

Thomas Bailey
Pat James

Executive Director, Online Education Initiative

Pat holds a Masters’ Degree in Education: Instructional Design for Online Learning and has extensive experience in Distance Education applicable to both secondary and higher education. Pat has led DE Program Planning and Implementation efforts at over a dozen colleges including her own, Mt. San Jacinto College (MSC) in California. In 2008 she won the California Community College Chancellor’s Office Technology Innovator of the Year Award. In addition to her work in distance education, she has been a leader in professional education and within the California Community College System.

Curriculum Development

Pat was a pioneer in online teaching with her Multimedia Production and Interactive Media online courses, which she taught for seven years. She then took on the job of Dean of both instructional technology and distance education at MSC. She started the MSC Technology, Teaching and Learning Professional Development Academy program, which now serves 500 participant faculty and staff, annually, and won the Chancellor’s Office Technology Innovative Project Award in 2011. She has continued to teach faculty members how to successfully design and teach online courses and was instrumental in designing the iONE Online Teacher Certification Program. Pat will retire from her dean’s position at MSC in January 2014 to continue her work in developing quality online educational opportunities for students and will continue to teach online for the iONE project.

Her California State-wide service began in 2000 when she served as a California Virtual Campus mentor, then was in the Academic Senate for the CCC Executive Committee and chair of the ASCCC Technology Committee. She became the co-director of the CCC iONE Professional Development project in 2009 and in 2013, led the CCC Distance Education Coordinators to the creation of their own organization. Her work in planning and implementation of the CCC Online Teaching Conference has resulted in the continuation of a vibrant conference that is held every June in California in a hybrid format.

She was the lead designer and grant writer for “Crafting an Effective Writer”, Coursera’s first Community College Massive Open Online Course (MOOC). Her efforts resulted in MSC receiving a Gates Foundation grant that allowed for the development of the basic writing course that, in two sessions, has served over 90,000 students across the globe. Additionally, she has led an effort at MSC to serve international online students that has created a partnership with a new college, American Honors College in Dubai.

Her latest work has been as Executive Director of the Online Education Initiative for the California Community Colleges.
